

Nominations for Governing Council seats open Monday

Nominations for 13 vacancies on the Governing Council in teaching staff, administrative staff, and student constituencies will be open from Monday, Jan. 28, until Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 12 noon, the Office of the Governing Council has announced.

Ballots will be mailed to the home addresses of all eligible voters in the constituencies concerned on or about Feb. 28. Ballots are to be returned not later than 12 noon March 13, and the result of the election will be announced as soon as possible after that date.

Students elected will hold office for one year, as required by the University of Toronto Act 1971. The successful candidates in the teaching staff and administrative staff constituencies will be elected for three year terms, beginning next July 1.

All those now on Governing Council are eligible for re-election if they continue in the constituencies for which they were originally elected. Accordingly, students not returning to the University for the 1974-75 academic session cannot be nominated.

While the staff and student election is underway, alumni are electing three members, through their College of Electors, to fill the seats now held by Gestra J. Abols, William H. Broadhurst, and the Rev. Graham Cotter. The present incumbents are eligible for re-election and the candidates chosen will be on Council for three years. Nominations for the alumni election close on Feb. 16 at 5 p.m.

Terms of seven appointed members of Council expire on June 3: Principal Ralph Campbell, Scarborough College, and President John Kelly, St. Michael's College, who are Presidential appointees; five named by the provincial government — Edward Dunlop, Betty Kennedy, Peter Newman, Marnie Paikin and Lynn Williams.

The members of Governing Council whose terms expire on June 30, and whose seats are to be filled in this election, are:

Teaching staff

Dr Jaap de Leeuw new director of Aerospace Studies Institute

Dr. Jaap de Leeuw, assistant director of the Institute for Aerospace Studies, is to become director on July 1. He succeeds Dr. Gordon N. Patterson, who founded the Institute 25 years ago and has been its director ever since.

Dr. de Leeuw (pronounced "dell-ay-o") is a fluid dynamicist. His special interests have been in rarefied gases and plasmas — gases that have acquired entirely different properties by virtue of their high temperature. He was the moving spirit and the central figure in the Institute's highly successful program to launch a series of rocket probes high into the atmosphere from Fort Churchill to learn more about the electrified layers known as the ionosphere.

Jacob (Jaap) Henri de Leeuw was born in Amsterdam on Jan. 4, 1929. After doing the first four years of his engineering diploma course at the Technical University of Delft in Holland, he enrolled in the Georgia Institute of Technology and obtained his master of science degree in 1952. Returning to Delft, he obtained his diploma. He then joined U of T and obtained his Ph.D. in aerophysics in 1958. He has been a staff member of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering and of the Institute for Aerospace Studies (originally Institute of Aerophysics) ever since.

A keen pilot, Dr. de Leeuw says, "It was my desire to learn to fly that made me decide to take aeronautical engineering because the course offered free initial flight instruction." More recently, he has taken up scuba diving, "to keep an eye on my 11-year-old son".

Author or co-author of many scientific papers on properties of the upper atmosphere and on techniques for the acquisition of data, Dr. de Leeuw has recently become interested in the use of lasers to make remote measurements of atmospheric turbulence. He has also co-operated closely with Dr. Patterson on the Science Council's study of the energy situation in Canada, now and in the future.

As assistant director, he was involved in the coordination of a number of Woodsworth is the name adopted for 'College X'

Woodsworth College is the name of the college (hitherto popularly called College X) established to enrol part-time students in credit courses. The designation, recommended by President John Evans, commemorates the memory of the late James S. Woodsworth, founder and first leader of the C.C.F. Prof. Arthur Kruger was appointed principal of the college December.

The Governing Council last evening gave its approval to the recommendation at the end of a long and frequently noisy meeting with many more than the normal number of spectators. Most of them were students, present to express their objection to the Code of Behaviour, which was on the agenda.

The search committee which had put forward Mr. Woodsworth's name, recalled that "his contributions to Canadian political life, in particular the development and implementation of early social security legislation, are well-known. In addition, he had a very strong interest in broadening the educational opportunities for those who did not have a chance to obtain their education at the usual stage."

It was also noted that July 29 next would be the 100th anniversary of Mr. Woodsworth's birth in Etobicoke. He received most of his education in Manitoba, although he obtained a Bachelor of Divinity degree at Victoria College in Toronto. It was in this city that he was first moved to work for social reform.

The business of Council was delayed from the outset while a noisy crowd of visitors demanded loudly that one of their number be permitted to address Council immediately instead of at the end of the agenda under "Other Business". A motion by Gordon Barnes that the visitor be heard at once failed to achieve the requisite two-thirds majority and the Council attempted to proceed with its agenda, but the speaker delivered his harangue on the general subject of racism.

The most controversial item before Council was consideration of the Code of Behaviour, and disciplinary structures, which took up most of the balance of the meeting. The motion before the Council, after a minor amendment by Mrs. Marnie Paikin had been accepted, read:

"...that it would be injurious to implement a code of behaviour containing sections grievously objected to by those it would regulate, the Governing Council establishes the following timetable for developing consensus on the Code and the Disciplinary Structures and Procedures:

"Preview of the Code, involving amendments and/or deletions for consideration by the Internal Affairs Committee at its meeting on January 28.

"Preview of the Structures and Procedures to be brought to the March meeting of the Governing Council.

"That the Governing Council formally receives its instruction that the Chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee, the Chairman of the Internal Affairs Committee, along with selected representatives from both committees and the Vice-President — Internal Affairs, meet with two representatives of each of SAC, APUS, GSU, and UTFA, to discuss the issues in discipline, and recommend through the Academic Affairs Committee and the Internal Affairs Committee to the Governing Council possible changes in the Code of Behaviour.

"In consideration of the above schedule the Governing Council will defer approval of any disciplinary legislation until at least the March meeting of the Governing Council.

"On the assumption that consensus on the new Structures and Procedures, and substantial progress towards consensus on the Code of Behaviour, will have been achieved for the discipline legislation forwarded to the Governing Council at its March meeting, the Governing Council will give an undertaking to take no legislative action prior to Jan. 1, 1975, on the non-academic sections of the Code on which consensus

Briefs invited on method to select student members for tenure committees

The Subcommittee of the Academic Affairs Committee to consider mechanisms for selection of students for possible participation on tenure committees has begun to meet and plans to report by mid-February to the Academic Affairs Committee. The Academic Affairs Committee will then consider the principle of such representation.

The Subcommittee invites individuals or groups to submit comments or briefs to be directed specifically towards the mechanisms, rather than the principle, of such representation.

Submissions should be directed to the Secretary of the Governing Council, Room 106, Simcoe Hall, to be received no later than Feb. 1.

What to publish? The Press tells how books picked for publication

In its January issue, Press Notes, the University of Toronto Press news letter, outlines its procedures for dealing with the manuscript of a scholarly book offered to the Press for possible publication. "What to publish?" was written by Dr. Ronald Schoefield, senior house editor of the Press, responsible for the processing of all manuscripts in collaboration with other area editors.

Excerpt from the Press Notes article follows:

Skill in choosing what to publish, in telling good books from bad, has always been crucial to success in scholarly publishing, but since the current austerity in higher education began, it has become essential for survival. Wrong choices these days are madness, and yet it is just as hard as ever, and costs very much more than it formerly did, to make good ones.

A scholarly author who wishes to submit a manuscript to the Press most often heralds it with a letter. If the work does not seem to have a reasonable chance of acceptance we try to head it off at this point, in order to save time, frustration, and expense for all concerned. Some hundreds of manuscripts are declined every year without examination - poetry and fiction, which the Press does not publish, textbooks (unless we can rarely afford), Pestschriften and essay collections - those particularly impressive in theme, organization, and content, theses and revised theses, and works on topics or areas outside the Press's current fields of interest.

At any given moment these days, about 370 manuscripts are in the Press, making their way gradually to the stage where they will be either accepted for publication or reluctantly rejected. This is a daunting statistic, but it should not discourage authors. The wait can be long and the reward is often only a frank critical assessment that leads to further work by the author - but somewhere in the Press's Editorial Department there is always someone, or more than one, who cares a great deal about each manuscript. The editorial shepherds who share the authors' enthusiasm for their subjects, whether they be bird's nest fungi, vorpiscism, or Old High German glosses and who would like them to make the manuscripts known, are the true editors.

Most of the time, the examination of manuscripts is an exhilarating experience, as editors familiarize themselves with the content, organization, style, and intended audience of each new book that comes their way.

On the basis of this preliminary examination, the editor selects an appropriate first reader. Academic readers perform an invaluable service in assisting the Press to decide which manuscript to take on to publication. To select the right reader, the editor uses not only his own knowledge about and experience in the subject area, but often also the advice of leading scholars in the field.

The ideal reader of a manuscript may be, and often is, found anywhere between Afghanistan and Zanzibar. In addition to frequent difficulty in tracking him down, the logistics of getting the manuscript to and from him often pose significant problems. A manuscript sent to Paris by air on one occasion was accidentally detained for two months in the Middle East - while the author tried to recover his equilibrium upon realizing too late that it was the only copy in which he had incorporated his most recent extensive revisions. (Moral: Never submit a manuscript without keeping an up-to-date copy.)

Once a manuscript does find a reader, we assume he will usually require six to eight weeks to read and appraise adequately.

Readers' reports are examined by the area editor in conjunction with the manuscript. Negative reports - or even lukewarm ones - can and often do result in the rejection of a manuscript. This is disappointing for the editor as well as for the author, for editors want to publish, not reject, books that they always hope for good' books and because every time they turn down a manuscript, the Press's whole investment of time, effort, and money is completely lost. (The cost of appraising a manuscript varies, but it may run from $100 for a relatively simple manuscript to $500 or more for a complex work.)

Each reader's report, and there may be two, three or more on a given work, especially when views conflict, requires editor and author to examine attentively the report and the manuscript. This process may occupy several months, or even take a year or more, until finally (if all goes as it should) there exists a version of a manuscript with a balance of favourable reports that may proceed to the final stages of consideration.

Manuscripts that give promise of recovering their publication costs through sales, or that can be costed out adequately with the aid of the outside support may move directly on to publication. Manuscripts that fail to find a reader (usually in addition to such outside funds) from the Publications Fund of the Press are brought forward to the Publications Committee of the Press (consisting of a group of scholars drawn from the faculty of the University of Toronto) for a decision on publication. Once such a manuscript has the Committee's approval, a contract is drawn up for the author's signature, and the work is officially added to the publishing list of the Press. It then moves out of appraisal into copy-editing, design, and production.

Premier William Davis issued the following statement on the appointment last week of Chancellor Pauline McGibbon as Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario:

"I am extremely pleased with the appointment of Mrs. Pauline McGibbon as Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario, particularly so since she is the first woman in our history to fill this important and traditional position.

"Mrs. McGibbon's contribution in the field of education and in the arts is widely known across Canada and makes her an excellent choice as the Queen's representative in our province.

"Community service has been a way of life for Mrs. McGibbon, as it was for her family. Her mother, for example, served on the Board of Education in Sarnia where Mrs. McGibbon was born and grew up.

"Since graduating from Victoria College, University of Toronto, in 1933, she has continued throughout the years to an exemplary record in public service in many fields of endeavour. Her appointment as Chancellor of the University of Toronto in 1971 was at that time a climax to a long and distinguished career.

"On behalf of the people and government of Ontario, I welcome Mrs. McGibbon to her new office. I know she will serve the people of Ontario with grace and distinction for many years to come."

Surgeons from China ask to see where Norman Bethune studied

When four Chinese plastic surgeons, skilled in the reattachment of severed limbs, visited Toronto recently, two places they were anxious to see were a room in the McMurtry Building, once the Anatomy Building, where the late Dr. Norman Bethune attended lectures, and the anatomy library where he studied. They also inspected the operating theatres of the Department of Laboratory Animal Services and the Instructional Media Services of the Faculty of Medicine.

In St. Michael's Hospital, they attended University Grand Rounds and talked to one patient who had been treated with some success after losing an arm at the elbow as a child, when she fell into an outboard motor boat, and to another who now has good use of two fingers which had been severed by a machine tool. Later, they presented a 30-minute film in a nearby theatre and impressed a large audience of surgeons with the high degree of success they have achieved in the reimplantation of amputated limbs of all sorts.

One Canadian surgeon commented that Canadian work to date compares with Chinese expertise "as tidbits with compares with ice hockey". Greater attention to industrial safety in Canada is said to have provided Canadian surgeons with less opportunity to practise their skills in this area.

Teaching Staff — 10

Graduate Students — 15

Full-Time Undergraduate Students — 50

Part-Time Undergraduate Students — 15

Administrative Staff — 20

Nominators must be members of the same constituency as the nominee, and a nominator may not nominate more candidates for election than there are seats vacant in his constituency. Nomination forms may be obtained, upon request, from the Office of the Governing Council, or Registrars' Offices at Scarborough and Erindale Colleges. The form is on the page designated for election to file a bona fide nomination paper. Errors or irregularities in these papers constitute grounds for rejection of the nomination. Such errors or irregularities may be corrected prior to the close of nominations but not afterwards. The Office of the Governing Council will attempt to notify candidates of any errors prior to the close of nominations. Consequently, candidates are advised to complete and submit their nomination forms early in the nomination period.

The names of candidates nominated for election will be considered public information as they are received. The names of nominators will not be released by the Office of the Governing Council.

A person nominated as a candidate in the election may withdraw his nomination by notarized instrument in writing received by the Office of the Governing Council within 48 hours after the close of nominations.

A successful candidate must resign his seat at any time at which he ceases to meet the eligibility requirements for election to that seat.

Citizenship

Any person nominated as a candidate must be a Canadian citizen at the time of nomination. His candidacy is to be acceptable. Documentary evidence of Canadian citizenship must be presented with each nomination form for examination in the Office of the Governing Council. Any one of the following will be considered acceptable: evidence of citizenship: certificate of birth in Canada; certificate of citizenship; certificate of naturalization; Canadian certificate of registration of birth abroad; certificate of retention of Canadian citizenship; valid Canadian passport. Failing such documentary evidence a notarized statement to the effect that the nominee is a Canadian citizen must accompany the nomination form. The Office of the Governing Council will make available such statements for signature and, if requested in advance, will arrange for their notarization.

Candidates' Statements

Nominees may submit, on nomination forms, two biographical statements or other comments, up to a limit of 75 words each. Such statements are voluntary and will be made available to voters through the campus media and accompanying ballots. Statements will not be published or distributed if, in the judgment of the Secretary of the Governing Council, assisted by such legal counsel as he may wish to employ, they could leave the University liable to suit for libel. The judgment of the Secretary in such instances shall be final. Candidates' statements may not be altered or amended after the close of nominations.

Election Expenses

Candidate campaign expenses will be refunded up to a limit of $50 on production of bona fide receipts at the close of the election, subject to the following restrictions:

i) If in any single-seat constituency more than five candidates run for election, the campaign expense refund provision will apply only to those candidates who obtain at least 20% of the vote obtained by the successful candidate.

ii) If in any multiple-seat constituency more than five candidates per seat run for election, the campaign expense refund provision will apply only for those candidates who obtain at least 20% of the votes obtained by the candidate elected with the least number of votes.

ELECTION SCHEDULE

Nominations open — January 28.

Nominations close — February 18, 12 noon.

Voting to be conducted by mailed ballot, ballots mailed on or about — February 28.

CLOSE of election — March 13, 12 noon.

Announcement of results — shortly thereafter.

BALLOTTING METHOD

Ballots will be mailed to each voter at his home address as recorded in the University's record systems;

Each ballot will be accompanied by a small secrecy envelope into which the marked ballot should be sealed;

Also provided will be a return-addressed envelope into which the small secrecy envelope should be sealed;

Voters will be required to provide, on the upper left-hand corner of the return envelope, information sufficient to allow verification of their ballot return;

Each ballot will also be accompanied by an information sheet containing candidates' statements, information on the correct method to return the ballot, information on eligibility to use that particular ballot, and a short description of the powers and duties of the Governing Council;

Persons who receive the wrong ballot due to an error in records will be advised in the information sheets how to obtain the correct ballot;

Persons who receive no ballot due to an error in records will be advised, through advertisements in the campus media, how to obtain the correct ballot;

All eligible voters are entitled to vote using one ballot:

— members of the teaching staff who hold a non-academic appointment will vote in the appropriate teaching staff constituency;

— full-time students who are employed by the University as teaching assistants, research assistants, temporary library help, or in any other way, will vote in the appropriate student constituency;

— part-time students who are employees of the University may vote in the appropriate student constituency or in the administrative staff constituency, but not in both constituencies;

In the case of two or more ballots being received from any one voter, both being ballots for a constituency in which the voter is entitled to vote, only the first ballot received by the Office of the Governing Council will be valid.

Voting in Multiple Seat Constituencies

A voter may vote for up to the number of seats vacant in his constituency.

Balloting by Voters Absent from the Campus

It is suggested that voters who will be absent from campus during the balloting period arrange to have their ballot forwarded to them. Twelve days are allowed for return of ballots.

Returning Ballots

Ballots may be returned through Canada Post or University Delivery.

For the convenience of voters who do not wish to return their ballots through the mail, ballots may be handed in at the Information Desk, Simcoe Hall, or at locations to be announced at Scarborough College and Erindale College.

Ballot Mailing Lists

A list will be available shortly prior to and during balloting for inspection by any person at the Office of the Governing Council at hours convenient to the person and the Office.

Scrutineering

Overseers shall be appointed by the Governing Council of the University. The decisions of such overseers in any matters of contention regarding validity of nominations, voter eligibility, and verification and tabulation of returns, shall be final.

In addition, each candidate for election may appoint a scrutineer for the tabulation of returns and such scrutineers may also check the completed verification of ballot returns prior to tabulation.

Ballot Security

All returned ballots will be held in security by the Office of the Governing Council.

Equality of Votes

In the case of an equality of votes for candidates for any office for which only one person is to be elected, the successful candidate shall be determined by a lottery conducted by the Office of the Governing Council.

Irregularities

The election shall not be invalidated by any irregularity which does not affect the outcome of the election.

Announcement of Results

The number of votes received by each candidate will be announced, as will the number of spoiled ballots received.

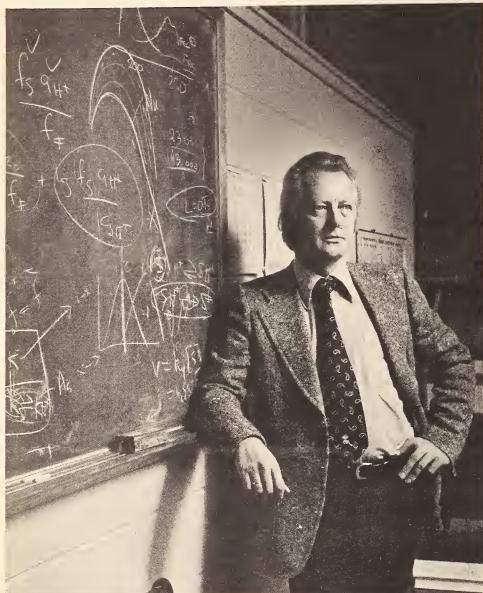

Retention and Disposal of Ballots and Return Envelopes

All ballots received, and all return envelopes, will be held in security by the Office of the Governing Council for a period of sixty days after the announcement of election results. Any re-count requested by any candidate will be conducted if authorized by the Governing Council of the University. After the period of sixty days all ballots received, and all return envelopes, will be destroyed.

Authority for the Conduct of the Election

The election is conducted by the Governing Council under the authority of the University of Toronto Act, 1971.

Keith Yates chairman of chemistry succeeds Adrian Brook July 1

Prof. Keith Yates, 45, is to succeed Prof. Adrian G. Brook as chairman of the Department of Chemistry of the University of Toronto on July 1 next.

Keith Yates obtained his B.A. and M.Sc. from the University of British Columbia, then his Ph.D. there in organic chemistry before proceeding to Oxford for a D.Phil. in physical chemistry.

In 1961 he joined U of T as an assistant professor of chemistry. He became associate professor in 1964 and professor in 1968. For two years he was assistant dean in the School of Graduate Studies.

Dr. Yates has been chiefly involved in the field of physical organic chemistry and has focused on two main areas: the properties of concentrated acid solutions, particularly the behaviour of organic molecules in these solutions; and studies of the detailed mechanisms of organic reactions.

"What we are trying to develop in each," he says, "is an understanding of how chemical reactions in solution actually take place at a molecular level. This we do by seeking answers to such questions as which chemical bonds are made and broken during reactions, how many steps are involved in production of the final products, what species are involved as discrete or transitory intermediates and what energy changes are required to effect the reactions."

His current research emphasis has been on the kinetics of organic reactions, which involves a study of how the rates of organic reactions are affected by changes in reaction conditions such as the solvent, temperature, presence or absence of catalyst, concentration of reagents and how different reaction pathways can lead to different products and sometimes quite different stereochemical results. "It is hoped," says Dr. Yates, "that a detailed knowledge of the factors which influence or control certain model organic reactions will help us predict more successfully the course of many other reactions."

During his undergraduate and graduate studies he won many prizes and he has been the author or co-author of some 60 papers in learned journals. He has been a member of the Senate of the University, a member of the Graduate Council and of the Research Board. Recently he was chairman of the presidential advisory committee on Environmental Studies and a member of the Presidential Task Force to Review Policy and Procedures on Academic Appointments.

Presidential committee to review operations of the U of T Press

Dr. Claude Bissell, University Professor, has been named chairman of a Presidential committee to review the operations of the University of Toronto Press.

The committee's terms of reference call for an examination of the current function of the Press and a review of its editorial and publishing priorities, administrative structures and the problems involved in its capital and operating programs. The committee will also consider the appropriate academic, administrative, and financial relations between the Press and the University.

The members of the Committee, in addition to Dr. Bissell, are:

Prof. Carl Berger, Department of History; John M. Gray, The Macmillan Company of Canada; Mrs. Sonja Sinclair, Price Waterhouse Associates; and Frank

Stone, Assistant Vice-President, University of Toronto.

The Press, under the direction of Marsh Jeanneret since 1953, has established an enviable international reputation in the field of scholarly publishing. It has had a particularly significant impact on scholarly publishing at the University of Toronto and in Canada generally. There has not been a major policy review of Press operations since those undertaken by the Woodhouse Committee in 1945. It is hoped that this new study will assist the Press in maintaining its position of leadership.

The Committee would like to hear from all interested individuals in the University and particularly in the Press who wish to make submissions. Further information can be obtained from Michael Dafoe, Secretary of the committee, at 928-4980.
